Watch Your Baby These Summer Days

Little Stomachs Get out of Order Easily in Hot Weather.

During the hot months mothers should look very carefully to the condition of the bowels of babies and young children, and for that matter, it is very important in the lives of people at all ages. Care should be taken that the water is pure, the milk wholesome and the fruit ripe (though not over ripe) and that not too much of anything is eaten.

When trouble results it is usually in the form of constipation or diarrhoea. If the child loses appetite, is fretful or languid, and complains of headache, you may look for constipation. Give it a small dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at night on retiring and by morning this pleasant laxative will have acted and the child will be its normal self again.

At the first sign of a summer cold also give Syrup Pepsin, as the clean lag out of the bowels will usually be sufficient to break the cold. Summer diarrhoea can be stopped in the same way by ridding the bowels of the poisons and germs that cause the trouble. This opinion of the value of Syrup Pepsin is shared by thousands of people like Mrs. Ella Densel, 124 Nichols Ave., Stratford, Conn., who writes:

uses it successfully herself and gives it to her two little boys and Mrs. C. C. Allen, of New Monterey, Cal., who finds it in every particular just what she and her family need.

Avoid giving children cathartics, purgatives or pills or powders, as they are too harsh. Confine yourself to a gentle laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You can obtain it of any druggist at fifty cents and one way by ridding the bowels of the poisons and germs that cause the trouble.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it, postpaid, by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 415 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

YOUNG MAN GETS BEATING THAT BELONGED TO ANOTHER--LATTER TOLD ABOUT IT ALSO GOES IN MOURNING--SUFFERS FROM DIZZY SPELLS

HIS INSTRUCTIONS TO MAKE HIM WHISTLE, GIVEN UNDER HIS EVIL STAR, PROVED THE SALVATION OF ANOTHER, WHO HAD TO SPOIL ESCAPE BY TALKING—INCIDENT THAT BEFELL ON SUNDAY MORNING.

"Gimme onion to eat in mornin'—sabe—an' make me whistle goin' up to door, an' goose'll-hane high," was the adjuration of a well known young man about town early Sunday morning. It was pronounced with difficulty—the first effort before the fading, which the young man felt approaching with the throttle open. Also it was pronounced under the influence of his evil star, for it made him wear a beef steak over one eye in the conclusion of his room during Sunday morning. Whether or no his skull was fractured, all of which should not have been, except that the best of plans oft fall down. Sadly it was ever thus.

By way of a fair introduction it may be remarked that the young man young man about town early Sunday morning. It was pronounced with difficulty—the first effort before the fading, which the young man felt approaching with the throttle open. Also it was pronounced under the influence of his evil star, for it made him wear a beef steak over one eye in the conclusion of his room during Sunday morning. Whether or no his skull was fractured, all of which should not have been, except that the best of plans oft fall down. Sadly it was ever thus.

Had a man on the same day bought a piece of real estate for $6000 in the central part of Philadelphia or in any direction around it, or in almost any other thriving town, the increase in his capital now would be very great, in almost every case. One man who twenty-four years ago paid $50,000 for a Chestnut street property recently refused $450,000 for it. His capital has multiplied by more than fifteen.

It is a curious thing that there is such a general impression that those who own railroads have grown rich with amazing rapidity. The truth is that a dollar invested half a century ago in America's largest railroad and the one where traffic is densest and the people richest, and where business has grown the fastest, is worth a little less than a dollar today. Similar comparisons might be made with the other standard lines in the East.

house without awakening it. He had raised a back window and with much difficulty was lifting himself through it, when the trouble began in the front hall. Did that man go to see what it was about? Not on your life. What he did was to hustle into the spare bed room and get under the covers. And he swore to the Duchess of the Rolling Pin when she later made the rounds of the house that he had been there since 10 o'clock, because he knew she had been working hard and he didn't want to wake her out of her sleep. And as her war spirit had about all the exercise it needed for one time, it was one of those times that are remembered in dotage with chuckles and squirts of tobacco smoke through pipes where there used to be teeth. Once or twice in a life time—sure enough, why not?

But the narrative wanders. Subsequent to the incident of the intended falling, one of young men detached himself, or became lost from the main command. He knew it was time to go home. Also he knew that his lady had the right to expect exemplary moral conduct from him at least until such time as a certain worrisome room rent deficit might be adjusted. Now this young man had the whistling habit under normal conditions, and early Sunday morning it was strong in what was left of his mind that if he approached his boarding house whistling as usual there would be allayment of suspicion that might otherwise come about. His inclination to whistle voluntarily, however, was nil. He wanted to sleep; provided things would stop going around long enough to let him get at it. So to a sober friend he entrusted his destiny, along with description of location of his boarding house, and marching the all-in young man before him the friend sought that boarding house.

Now it happened that he failed to get the right house. And by an odd coincidence the house he did get was one of which there lives a man also given to convivial habits and whistling in the home stretch. This man as fate would have it, was awaited by a stout lady with a familiar kitchen utensil. She gathered the latter from alongside her couch as the 1:30 a. m. serenade struck her ear and proceeded to the front door. Before she turned the light up to take a good look at the job, which lay prostrate, breathing hard, she had given the object a very thorough working over.

That the Lord is merciful to his children, was the renewed belief of the man who belongs to that woman, though her Sunday morning victim holds a different opinion. Husband's story is necessary to the completion of the other. He arrived home soon after the burlesque said "good night, gentlemen. The chimes say I." His head was dizzy but not to the point of sheer madness. So he sat down on the rear stoop or carfully and noiselessly picking his way there, he gave himself over to contemplation of ways and means of entering that evening—well, hubby made it stick. It was too good to keep, and he told about it down town Sunday. There is no harm in printing it for the truth got back to the Duchess yesterday morning and there was possibly interest included in what subsequently happened.

Lamentable Ignorance.

Real Estate Better Than Railroad Stock

Pennsylvania Values Cited to Correct Erroneous General Impression.

A man who bought 100 shares of Pennsylvania Railroad stock 60 years ago—say the first day of the battle of Gettysburg—paid approximately $6000 for it. If he kept it until today he would have received about six per cent on his money all that time but his capital would now be only $5600.

Had a man on the same day bought a piece of real estate for $6000 in the central part of Philadelphia or in any direction around it, or in almost any other thriving town, the increase in his capital now would be very great, in almost every case. One man who twenty-four years ago paid $50,000 for a Chestnut street property recently refused $450,000 for it. His capital has multiplied by more than fifteen.
